Von Ein Kunde Macrina has done a wonderful presentation of prayer that relates to real people's real lives. Many of us believe that prayer is for "holy" people, and the discovery that "holy" is all around us is a miracle of revelation for many. Particularly helpful for me were Chapters 3 and 5. Chapter 3 deals with finding nourishment in those parts of our lives that aren't obviously rich and joyful. How do we "gather the crumbs" from both everyday and difficult times to find enough to eat and be nourished? Chapter 5 has been very helpful to me in teaching others about Benedictine spirituality. The richness of Macrina's development of "lectio divina" and its place in her prayer life is both supportive and instructive for those who read her work. I'm looking forward to her next work!

Von raphyl@webtv.net This book was not as "grabbing" as "Seasons of Your Heart." because it was written on a more intellectual basis. It didn't flow as nicely. However, I still gave it four stars. In my opinion, if you read this book before "Seasons of Your Heart," I would have to give ten stars to "Seasons...." so I would start with this one if you never read Macrina Wiederkehr before. She is definitely worth it! I'm going to read it again. It's been ten years ago that I read it. Sometimes in your life it all depends where you are at spiritually. After I read it again, I will submit another review. I might not be doing her justice. The content might relate better when you don't have distractions.

Von Ein Kunde This is not a book you can read quickly if you want to digest the true meaning. It should be read at times when it can be savored and truly focused on. The only thing that did not relate to my life that Macrina struggles with is that I do not ever feel God is not present in my life. Through it all I feel His presence.
