strange thing with consequences Von Roman Nies According to US Supreme Court Chief Justice Melville Fuller the author the highest authority on legal evidence cited in our courts. After making an exhaustive examination of the claims of Christ just as he would examine evidence or testimony introduced into a court of law, Greenleaf, who had been a life-long-self-professed agnostic, embraced Christ as his Saviour and all that the Bible portrays of Him. As a result he wrote this book, in which he declares that the Bible withstood every test of evidence a court of law could impose and challenged fellow members of the legal profession to examine it honestly. Declaring that Christianity does not seek accommodation with world religions but denounces all religions of the world as false and dangerous. Greenleaf argues: "The claims of Jesus Christ...solicit the grave attention of all and demand their cordial belief as a matter of vital concernment. These are no ordinary claims: and it seems hardly possible for a rational being to regard them with even a subdued interest; much less to treat them with mere indifference and contempt." In contrast to these words have atheistic professors deliberately spread misinformation about the Bible to university students, although many of the most brilliant scientists in history were firm believers in the Bible. Werner von Braun was one of them who wrote: "The vast mysteries of the universe should only confirm our belief in the certainty of its Creator. I find it as difficult to understand a scientist who does not acknowledge the presence of a superior rationality behind the existence of the universe."
