Von Edward Sapir : Language An Introduction to the Study of Speech (English Edition) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Language An Introduction to the Study of Speech (English Edition):

Kundenrezensionen Hilfreichste Kundenrezensionen 6 von 6 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. One of the best general introductions to linguistics. Von Ein Kunde Sapir's 1921 "Language" is one of the finest of many fine works by the distinguished linguist, anthropologist and humanist. With piercing yet accessible insight, he guides the reader through fundamental questions about language: How are culture and language related? How does language work? How do languages vary? Although there are many general introductions to the subject (Bloomfield's and Jespersen's volume come to mind), Sapir's is unmatched for sheer readability in interest. Highly recommended. 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Historisch interessant Von Dr. Helmut K. Ramminger Wahrscheinlich sind nicht alle Thesen Sapirs heute noch gltig, aber die Anstze sind immer noch interessant und eine Diskussion wert.

Synopsis This little book aims to give a certain perspective on the subject of language rather than to assemble facts about it. It has little to say of the ultimate psychological basis of speech and gives only enough of the actual descriptive or historical facts of particular languages to illustrate principles. Its main purpose is to show what I conceive language to be, what is its variability in place and time, and what are its relations to other fundamental human interests - the problem of thought, the nature of the historical process, race, culture, art. The contents of this book are: Language Define; The Elements of Speech; The Sounds of Language; Form in Language; Grammatical Processes; Form in Language; Grammatical Concepts; Types of Linguistic Structure; Language as a Historical Product: Drift; Language as a Historical Product: Phonetic Law; How Languages Influence Each Other; Language, Race and Culture; and Language and Literature.
