Kurzbeschreibung Volume 1 of the Cole Coonce drag strip reader. Churned out between races while sitting in a trackside porta-potty, Coonce's collection of incendiary drag strip journalism was written during his days at Super Stock Drag Illustrated, Full Throttle News and Nitronic Research, between his stints as a guitar player in Braintead Soundmachine and his return to show business as Angelyne's fluffer in Studio City, California. Its 256 pages of ack-ack includes "Viva La Nitro!" and "Who's Afraid of Arley Langlo?"

ber den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Cole Coonce immigrated to California in the grease bucket of a Studebaker wagon in the 1840s. Since he could not afford passage at the time, he was given to stow away. As a young hobo on the road in America, Coonce picked up many Native American languages and social mannerisms. (Most of which had to be sold for rent money in Los Angeles.) Coonce now pioneers Goodyear drag-slick tire melting amp; air intake research for blower explosions. His final countdown looms in this torrid display of straightline tarmac wizardry.
