Von ritamaria No romance or humor survives the author's fascination with brands and prices! Wine is never good, full, delicious or fresh, it is Chateau d'Something. Shoes are not pretty, high, comfortable or stylish, they are Louboutins and you can read the entire book replacing the word good with the word expensive, every time brand-dropping would not do the trick. And this at least every second page....the story is sweet enough, but it has no rhythm and the constant mention of brand names and price tags destroys it. 1 von 1 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. romantic escapism Von mavroesque Unlike the previous reviewer the mention of brands didn't bother me, I was just caught up in the story, which started off a bit slow but continually improved. I just was desperate to know what would happen next and I think the scenes were well described. Looking forward to reading the follow up. It was very romantic and relaxing to read, great for a rainy day, pure escapism. Enjoy. 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. funny read Von Jarali A very nice and honest account of life in rural France. Karen is a former fashion Journalist who buys a run-down house in the French countryside after being dumped by her long-time boyfriend. Her style is elegant, the content of the book very honest, and no, unlike some other people I didn't think she dropped too many brand names. I liked her novel a lot and am looking forward to her next book!

Kurzbeschreibung In her mid-thirties, the author had it all: a successful career as a fashion editor, a handsome boyfriend, fab flat in west London and a gorgeous array of shoes. But when her boyfriend leaves, she hangs up her Manolos and waves goodbye to her glamorous city lifestyle to go it alone in a run-down house in rural Poitou-Charentes, in central western France. Acquiring a host of new friends and unsuitable suitors, she learns that true happiness can be found in the simplest of things a bike ride through the countryside on a summer evening, or a kir or three in a neighbour's courtyard. Perfect summer reading for anyone who dreams of chucking away their Blackberry in favour of real blackberrying and downshifting to France.
